The private ranches are in thick pinon/juniper, with plenty of open fields encompassing 13,000 acres. Bulls have been allowed to reach full maturity because of the light hunting pressure in the area. The hunts are five days and take place during the height of the rut. The outfitter can adjust to any special conditions a hunter may require. The terrain on these hunts is easy to navigate with plenty of roads and rolling hills. They only allow two bow hunters a year on the ranches.

All hunts include airport pick up from Albuquerque, New Mexico, meals, lodging, trophy care and landowner tags where applicable.
